GE EXPLORER POST PRESIDENT CERTIFIED AS AUTO MECHANIC....

Explorer Post training leads to full-time employment and a career in auto mechanics for Lester Moorman (in photo).

the National Institute for Automotive Service Excellence, and must be renewed every five years.

Carlton says, "The automotive group of the GE Explorer

Post was begun to teach automotive mechanics to boys in the age group from 15-21.

"When I found that Central Virginia Community College was providing a program that could lead to certification as a mechanic, I took the course...in turn instructing Lester--using the course books, some other literature and hands-on experience to prepare him for the federally-administered tests."

As a result of certification and related experience in his father's garage, Lester is now employed full-time as an auto mechanic, according to Carlton, "but is still attending Post meetings... still studying...developing even greater skill in his chosen field."

"It's a mark of considerable accomplishment on his part," says Post Advisor Carlton Phillips of Lester Moorman's recent certification as an auto mechanic. "It isn't easy."

Lester, whose father Lloyd works in incoming inspection here, was the first sign-up for the GE-sponsored Explorer Post, chartered in the spring of 1974, and is currently president of the organization. (He round trips more than 60 miles to attend post meetings.)
